My name is Wayne Lain. I have trained snake avoidance professionally since 2004. It has been an amazing experience, an awesome journey. I have met people from all walks of life and dog breeds I never knew existed. Every year I hear success stories about dogs being saved. Unfortunately I hear the tragedies as well. It happens every year. We do our absolute best to teach avoidance to the dogs. The problem is they are dogs, running through the fields and woods, encounters with snakes are inevitable.

If you learn anything from this page please let it be this. I can't completely stop your dog from getting bit by a snake. Do the training to try and avoid a bite, vaccinate with Red Rock Laboratories Western Diamondback vaccine in case of a bite. Red Rock Laboratories rattlesnake vaccine, I believe in this product, google it and educate yourself, talk to your veterinarian about it. We can't know the exact number of dogs saved by the vaccine but, I know it has saved many. Talk to your veterinarian, discuss this product. DO NOT THINK SNAKE AVOIDANCE TRAINING IS THE ONLY SAFETY MEASURE YOU NEED. The training and the vaccine are relatively inexpensive. Coupled together, training and the vaccine is as good of protection you can buy for your dog. Why would you not do both? A lot of my clinics have a veterinarian present administering the vaccine.

The best thing you can do in the event of a bite is to get your dog safely to a veterinarian. Safety is the key word here. I have heard literally hundreds of stories and they are all similar to, "My dog was bitten by a rattler, I killed the snake and loaded up the dog in the truck. I drove 100 miles an hour to town and found out they didn't have a twenty four hour emergency clinic. So I called around and found a clinic that could provide the proper care, turned and headed that way at 100 miles per hour, talking on the telephone the whole way".

HAVE A PLAN! With a plan you can slow down and be methodical and confident. SAFE!
